SINGAPORE, SINGAPORE

The surprising superstitions of the Lion City

Superstitions are like culinary specialities: every part of the world has its own, and discovering those of new countries is always an experience, if not tasty, then at least fun.

Singapore is no exception to the rule in a South-East Asia that gives pride of place to the supernatural, and offers some surprising sparks of superstition that you can observe with a smile or take home with you, should they bring you luck... You never know.

Let's start with a belief that will please the cheapskates: in Singapore you don't gift watches or shoes. Watches symbolise the end and 'giving a clock' in Mandarin sounds very similar to 'attending a funeral'. To avoid bringing death, no watches or clocks are given. For shoes, the same battle: shoe is pronounced the same way as evil in Mandarin. So it's in very bad taste to give shoes. Two beliefs that can save a lot of money...

Also forbidden: cutting your nails after dark. In Singapore, it is believed that this practice attracts angry spirits who could bring misfortune on the house and its inhabitants. Never point at the moon either, especially if it is full. The risk? Finding yourself with the tips of your ears cut off in your sleep. Also to be avoided: whistling at night. This practice, which is harmless everywhere else, seems to please ghosts in this part of the world. Whistle at night and you could end up with a string of not always benevolent ghosts hanging around your neck. Fortunately, the best way to deal with this is to wash your feet and face as soon as you get home, so as to ward off the wandering spirits.

Another rule of the Lion City, which is also found in Vietnam, is that you don't take photos of three people. Two, yes. Four, yes, but three, no. It's bad luck for the person in the middle to be the first to die.

Finally, let's finish with a rather amusing and intriguing superstition involving new owners, a new flat or house and a pineapple. For good fortune to fall upon a new house and its owners or occupants, when they first enter their new home, they must knock on the door three times and shout 'huat ah' (good luck) as they roll a pineapple around. Derived from Feng Shui, this practice is said to purify the premises. The story doesn't say, however, whether a tin of pineapples will do the trick...

SIGHTS

- Chinatown or Bugis Street
- Jurong Lake Gardens
- SkyPark Observation Deck
- Art Science Museum
- Sentosa Island
- Clarke Quay
- Kampong Glam area
- Chinese Opera Tea House

SHOPPING

Singapore enjoys a reputation as a shopper's paradise. The most famous shopping area is along Orchard Road, but the more colourful, ethnic shops are found in the sectors of Little India, Arab Street and Chinatown. Handicrafts, antique porcelain, jewellery, and framed silk tapestries are just a few of the many tempting items offered for sale.

HAND WASHING & HAND SANITIZING

Keeping hands clean through improved hand hygiene is one of the most important steps we can take to avoid getting sick and spreading germs to others. Many diseases and conditions are spread by not washing hands with soap and clean, running water. Alcohol-based hand sanitizers can quickly reduce the number of germs on hands. Please use the hand sanitizers situated at the entrance door of the dining outlets and various locations around the ship.

IN THE EVENT OF AN EMERGENCY PLEASE DIAL 999
